of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen” during the French Revolution, and Bolívar’s “Letter from Jamaica” on the eve of the Latin American revolutions— influenced resistance to existing political authority, often in pursuit of independence and democratic ideals

Newly imagined national communities often linked this new national identity with borders of the state, and in some cases, nationalists challenged boundaries or sought unification of fragmented regions.

Call for national unification or liberation:

- Propaganda Movement in the Philippines
- Maori nationalism and the New Zealand wars in New Zealand
- Puerto Rico—writings of Lola Rodríguez de Tió
- German and Italian unifications
- Balkan nationalisms
- Ottomanism

Topic 5.3 Industrial Revolution Begins

Learning Objective

Explain how environmental factors contributed to industrialization from 1750 to 1900.

Historical Developments

A variety of factors contributed to the growth of industrial production and eventually resulted in the Industrial Revolution, including:

- Proximity to waterways; access to rivers and canals
- Geographical distribution of coal, iron, and timber
- Urbanization
- Improved agricultural productivity
- Access to foreign resources
- Accumulation of capital

- How did environmental factors contribute to the start of the Industrial Revolution around 1750?
- Where did the Industrial Revolution begin and why did it begin there?
- Explain how the factory system was different from the previously used cottage industries.
- How did specialization of labor increase industrial production?

	The development of the factory system concentrated production in a single location and led to an increasing degree of specialization of labor. socialism and communism.

In response to the expansion of industrializing states, some governments in Asia and Africa, including the Ottoman Empire and Qing China, sought to reform and modernize their economies and militaries. Reform efforts were often resisted by some members of government or established elite groups.

Topic 5.9 Society and the Industrial Age

Learning Objective

Explain how industrialization caused change in existing social hierarchies and standards of living.

Historical Developments

New social classes, including the middle class and the industrial working class, developed.

While women and often children in working class families typically held wage-earning jobs to supplement their families' income, middle-class women who did not have the same economic demands to satisfy were increasingly limited to roles in the household or roles focused on child development.

The rapid urbanization that accompanied global capitalism at times led to a variety of challenges, including pollution, poverty, increased crime, public health crises, housing shortages, and insufficient infrastructure to accommodate urban growth.

How did industrialization lead to changes in existing social hierarchies ?
How did industrialization lead to changes in standards of living?
How did industrialization change women's roles in society?

Topic 5.10 Continuity and Change in the Industrial Age

The final topic in this unit focuses on the skill of argumentation and so provides an opportunity for your students to draw upon the key concepts and historical developments they have studied in this unit. Using evidence relevant to this unit's key concepts, students should practice the suggested skill for this topic.

Learning Objective

Explain the extent to which industrialization brought change from 1750 to 1900.

Historical Developments

- The development of industrial capitalism led to increased standards of living for some, and to continued improvement in manufacturing methods that increased the availability, affordability, and variety of consumer goods.
  - Railroads, steamships, and the telegraph made exploration, development, and communication possible in interior regions globally, which led to increased trade and migration.
- The 18th century marked the beginning of an intense period of revolution and rebellion against existing governments, leading to the establishment of new nation-states around the world.
  - Enlightenment philosophies applied new ways of understanding and empiricist approaches to both the natural world and human relationships;

they also reexamined the role that religion played in public life and emphasized the importance of reason. Philosophers developed new political ideas about the individual, natural rights, and the social contract.

- The rise and diffusion of Enlightenment thought that questioned established traditions in all areas of life often preceded revolutions and rebellions against existing governments.
- Nationalism also became a major force shaping the historical development of states and empires

Unit 5: Revolutions (1750-1900) Context Practice

Instructions: Write a contextual statement for each of the prompts below. This will not only help you review content from Unit 5 (1750-1900), but also help you practice writing context statements which, if done successfully, can earn you one point on both the DBQ and LEQ essays.

To earn this point, the response must relate the topic of the prompt to broader historical events, developments, or processes that occur before, during, or continue after the time frame of the question. This point is not awarded for merely a phrase or reference.

The final sentence of your context should narrow down to the topic of the prompt, tying your contextual statement to your thesis statement.

Prompt 1: Evaluate the extent to which the Enlightenment affected societies during the 1750 to 1900 time period

Prompt 2: Evaluate the extent to which the Atlantic Revolutions shared similar causes during the 1750 to 1900 time period.

Prompt 3: Evaluate the extent to which environmental factors contributed to the Industrial Revolution in the 1750 to 1900 time period.

Prompt 4: Evaluate the extent to which states utilized state-sponsored industrialization in the 1750 to 1900 time period.

Prompt 5: Evaluate the extent to which free-market economic practices led to change during the 1750 to 1900 time period.

Prompt 6: Evaluate the extent to which industrialization led to social changes during the 1750 to 1900 time period.
